

Title	Finding Appropriate Practices in Participatory Community Forest Management of Sri Narong Sub-district, Chumphon Buri District, Surin Province
Authors	Udompong Ketsripongsa et al.
University	Industrial Management Technology, Faculty of Industrial Technology, Buriram Rajabhat University
Year	2017

ABSTRACT

This research aims to 1. Finding appropriate practices in participatory community forest management. And 2. To The community is managed of the community of Sri Narong Sub-district, Chumphon Buri District, Surin Province. The research found that 1) the appropriate practices in managing this community's forest resources by use the form of group establishment or appointment of community forest management committees, working groups in community forest management. There are 3 villages around the forest, including 30 community leaders who use the forest. A group to motivate people in the community to manage the forest. There are resources in the forest. Focus on taking care of and utilizing the forest. The knowledge of forest management in the community. There are agreements on the use of forests by the people in the community through the setting up of rules and regulations on the use of forests together. Involve people in the community by focusing on leaders and those who take advantage of the forest. The one who had invaded the forest before. Become a group member to help them take care of the forest. There are activities in forest maintenance, such as fencing, poles around the forest, preventing invasion. Reforestation on the important day, the forest ordination ceremony on the utilization and conservation of community forests. Use the participatory forest management model of the area. There is a common forest use agreement. There are forest invaders penalties. There are volunteers to protect the forest of the community. For the factors supporting 1) the management of the Tambon Administrative Organization (TAO), which is driven by the knowledge of forest management. There is a working network in the community, including the elders in the community. Volunteer groups in the area of children, corporate groups and outside government agencies for exchange learning together. 2) The reinforcement to promote the participation of all sectors, including community, government agencies. Educational institution Training on the utilization of forest resources for communities, training and use of forest data collection tools for communities. Restrictions and obstacles some of the best practices in community forest management include community participation, attitudes, and behavior. People in the community think that the operation depends on the leader. The external support is the operational budget for forest maintenance, such as forest fencing. Wilderness area sign.

Keywords : Appropriate Practices, Community Forest Management, Participatory